Stanford Alumni Conference Schedule

Dr. Edgar E. Robinson, nationally known historian, will open the Monterey-Santa Cruz-San Benito Counties Stanford Alumni Conference with an all-conference morning session "History in the Making," according to Jack Marsh Laughlin, president, and George V. Yates, general conference committeeman, of the Monterey Peninsula Stanford Club.

Judge Henry C. Jorgensen, of Salinas, will be chairman of the session commencing at 11 a.m. immediately following the 10:30 a.m. registration at Monterey Peninsula College on Feb. 22.

Dr. Robinson, Margaret Byrne, Professor of American History at Stanford, head of the History Department for 20 years, and since 1943 director of the Stanford Institute of American History, has been a member of the faculty since 1911. Last fall, under the title of "Scholarship and Cataclysm" he published the results of a nation-wide survey of teaching and research in American history in colleges and universities. One of Stanford's best-beloved teachers, he is the author of several books, a former president of the San Francisco Commonwealth Club and of the Pacific Coast Branch of the American Historical Association.

"Broadway Comes to Stanford" by Professor F. Cowles Strickland and "Recent Developments in Nuclear Physics" by Dr. Leonard I. Schiff will be the two sections in the first afternoon sessions.

Professor Strickland joined the Stanford faculty in 1940 with a long background of experience in summer theater and professional theater work in the East. He has developed at Stanford a novel and successful program of artists-in-residence and junior artists-in-residence. The purpose of this plan is to bring Stanford drama students in contact with experienced actors.

Delbert R. Jeffers, Monterey librarian, will be chairman of the theater session.

Dr. Schiff, brilliant 33-year-old physicist, joined the Stanford faculty in 1947 and is head of the University's Physics Department. Before coming to Stanford, he was at the University of Pennsylvania. During the war, he worked on the Los Alamos atom bomb project. He is the author of Quantum Mechanics published in 1948.

Roger Matthews, Pacific Grove High School science teacher and Pacific Grove councilman, will be chairman of the physics session.

"The Modern House" by Dr. Ray Nelson Faulkner and "British Labor Government: Record and Prospects" by Dr. Philip W. Buck will be the two sections in the second afternoon sessions, completing the Conference.

The public as well as Stanford Alumni may obtain reservations through Thomas A. Work, Jr., 900 Lighthouse Avenue, Monterey, at 75 cents for all-conference registration, and luncheon, optional, at 90 cents.

EL ESTERO USO CENTER STAYS OPEN

Edward W. Cochrane, of Carmel, head of the Monterey Peninsula USO, which disbanded recently, said this week that the El Estero center on Webster Street, Monterey, will continue to operate as an Armed Services YMCA, but that the Pearl Street center has been closed temporarily. John Wyle continues as director of the Webster Street center, while Harold Brewer has been re-employed as his assistant.

Mr. Cochrane said Fort Ord has increased its program facilities for the Negro troops who were normally accomodated by the Pearl Street USO.

COUNTY REPUBLICANS TO HEAR SHATTUCK

A Lincoln Day Dinner sponsored by the Monterey County Republican Central Committee will be held Tuesday, Feb. 14, at the Santa Lucia Inn, Salinas.

The committee in charge of arrangements for this event will be Harry L. Noland, Salinas, chairman; Corum B. Jackson, Carmel; Mrs. Frances Ballard, Carmel; Mrs. Milton Marquard, Carmel Valley, and Doss B. Bledsoe, Salinas.

Tickets for the Lincoln Day Dinner may be purchased from any member or associate member of the Republican Central Committee, or by calling Republican Headquarters, Salinas 22877, or Mr. Noland's office in Salinas - 5703.

Speaker for the evening will be Edward S. Shattuck, recently announced as the Republican choice for Attorney General of California.

BLESSED EVENT AT JEZEBEL'S

A blessed event is expected any day now in the window of Jezebel's Pet Shop on Seventh Street, in Carmel. The mother-to-be is a beautiful yellow canary named Patricia. Pat has been deserted by her husband, who managed to slip out of the mating cage and refused to return. It must have been this fact that has caused all the sympathy in the neighborhood that has centered around Pat. Ordinarily staid businessmen and dowagers without pets have been trooping into Jezebel's all week to see the little mother-to-be.

NOS PETITS SECRETS

By Janine

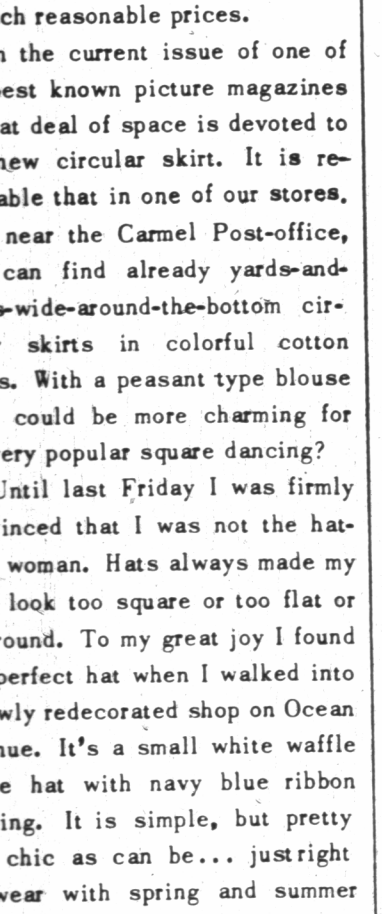
Sometimes I cannot believe I am here since Christmas. All through the days, which always seem too short, so many things intrigue or surprise or amuse me. I have not had so much fun since I was a little girl - too young yet to go to boarding school ...(I was so busy studying that I came back to "civil life" at 21).

I guess all through the world children love to look in store windows, or wander around inside, figuring ways to buy Maman the object of their dream. It has not changed for me except that now, instead of Maman, it is for my husband I am thinking. The other day in the five and ten cents store I felt just like the little girl in pigtails next to me., "oh-ing and ah-ing" and having a great time. My husband must have had a good time too, for he kept smiling and laughing, patiently waiting for me to move a meter or so every other five minutes... We finally left the nickel and dime store and I still thrill to know I came back home the proud owner of my first pair of nylon panties, bought in a little shop not far from the Carmel Post office. To have nylon underwear is the dream of every French girl - but it is a dream difficult to realise, for you don't find them yet in France - along with many other things, including cashmere sweaters. I am afraid I have a weakness for them ...but it is such a wonderful weakness, don't you think?

As I walked along the streets of Carmel one afternoon, the sun smiled all over the town and made me think of Spring, new collections and the always new pleasure of discovering the dress or suit I would love to have. The knitted dress is again capturing the attention of the Parisian couturiers this Spring, and several shops in Carmel give all the possibilities for every woman to own that much needed "petite robe." "La petite robe" is a typical Parisian term which means: the favorite dress, the one you feel comfortable in, which suits your personality and is so practical that you cannot get tired of it. It seems that a nicely knitted wool dress, or suit, should meet all those specifications, and be especially right for this climate. Well known French couturier "VANYNA DE WAR" specializes in knitted clothes, but they are always so expensive that very few women are able to afford a knitted dress. I was amazed to see such a wide selection in the shops here at such reasonable prices.

In the current issue of one of the best known picture magazines a great deal of space is devoted to the new circular skirt. It is remarkable that in one of our stores, also near the Carmel Post-office, you can find already yards-and-yards-wide-around-the-bottom circular skirts in colorful cotton prints. With a peasant type blouse what could be more charming for the very popular square dancing?

Until last Friday I was firmly convinced that I was not the hat-type woman. Hats always made my face look too square or too flat or too round. To my great joy I found the perfect hat when I walked into a newly redecorated shop on Ocean Avenue. It's a small white waffle pique hat with navy blue ribbon binding. It is simple, but pretty and chic as can be... just right to wear with spring and summer blues.



If some of you wish to make a gift to a woman for a Valentine, here is an idea you might like: Offer her a pair of gloves carefully stuffed with cotton so as to give them the shape of the hands, in the palms of which you place a rose or a camelia.

CARMEL MEN START NEW ROTARY CLUB

Steps for the organization of a Rotary Club were taken Wednesday by a group of 30 business and professional men who are planning to establish a unit of Rotary International, world-wide service club organization, in Carmel. Meeting with Corum Jackson, as temporary chairman, formerly of the Monterey Rotary Club, at the La Ribera Hotel, the men voted to apply for a charter in Rotary International, thus adding Carmel to the list of more than 6,900 cities in 82 countries and geographical regions of the world where Rotary has come to play a leading part in the progress of the community.

The new club is sponsored by the Rotary Club of Monterey, whose members have brought Rotary to Carmel through their friendship with the Carmel business and professional men. One of the distinctive features of Rotary is that Rotarians are welcome visitors at every other Rotary Club in the world. There are Rotary Clubs in Pacific Grove, Castroville, Salinas and Watsonville, as well as Monterey, and elsewhere throughout the state, so it is expected that the new Rotary Club of Carmel will have numerous visiting Rotarians at its meetings.

The Rotary Club of Carmel will hold its regular weekly meetings at the La Ribera Hotel at 12:15 p.m. each Wednesday. As soon as it has been formally admitted to membership in Rotary International, its official charter will be delivered by District Governor Wil-

GARDEN CLUB TO BEAUTIFY COLLEGE ENTRANCE

The Peninsula Garden Club has chosen the front entrance of Monterey Peninsula College as its next project in connection with the beautification of community areas, according to Mrs. Frank Wilkinson, of Pacific Grove, president of the organization.

"This ties in very well with with the general plan to beautify the front entrance to the school," Calvin C. Flint, president of the college, said this week. "Other features in the project will be the erection of adobe walls and a large redwood carved sign with the name MONTEREY PENINSULA COLLEGE A rustic redwood fence will one day be built around the entire area."

So far the club has planted more than $350 worth of plants furnished by local nurserymen at cost prices. "The money was obtained principally from the Peninsula Garden Club Tour, organized during Centennial Week by Mrs. Lawrence Lyon, of Pacific Grove," Mrs. Wilkinson stated.

The services of plowing and preparing the land were donated by Colonel Joe Williams (Ret.), of Pacific Grove, and the planning was done by Mrs. Wilkinson, Mrs. Lyon, and Mrs. S. L. Knudsen, of Monterey. Wild flower seed distributed in the area was donated by the Richfield Oil Company.

On completion of the project the Peninsula Garden Club will erect a large stone, with an ornamental plaque designating this as their contribution to the College.

Joey Branco, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Branco, of Pacific Grove, celebrated his third birthday with an icecream and cake party last week at Forest Hill School. Among those who attended were (reading about table from the left) Brian Beck, Leonard Cosky, Hugh Reilly, Michael Glover, Mrs. Branco, Joey, Randy Spalding, Christine Olsen, Mrs. Frederick Diven, teacher, Miss Ruth Chambre, teacher, Tony Mastin, George Haselwood, Patty Leidig and Frank Gay. GROVE MUNICIPAL NEWS

Next Wednesday evening, Pacific Grove's City Council will probably adopt a new zoning ordinance on first reading. The big question is: will strict control of signs hanging over the sidewalk in the business district be included. Nothing, of course, can be done about signs already in place. But sooner or later, every sign must come down for repair, repainting, or because a merchant moves from one location to another. A law could prevent the merchant in any such case, from retaining his sign, once taken down.

Dr. Clarence Higgins, chairman of the Grove City Planners, admitted Feb. 1 he felt the Planning Commission did not entirely agree with its expert, Walter Hahn. Hahn, although greatly favoring parking meters, opposes overhanging signs for aesthetic reasons.

Councilman Pat Coleman suggested that increasing municipal controls were a dangerous Socialistic trend. Catching Councilwoman Elmarie Dyke's Methodist eye, he hastily added that of course no one on the council could ever be called a Socialist. Still, Coleman thought it would be nice to go back to the old days, when all you needed to do to put up a sign, was get the sign. The council expressed great interest in Carmel's sign ordinance, but did not discuss it in detail.

Shortly before the end of a four-hour Pacific Grove City Council meeting last week, Councilwoman Elmarie Dyke called for a point of information. The question was whether Mayor William Chapman had a right to appoint committees without the council's approval. The answer: No charter provision, according to common usage, no reason why not.

The whole question came up when the mayor decided to put his finance expert, Newton S. Foster, on a committee as chairman, with Planning Commissioner, James Rye, and Meat Market Operator Robert Getts. Mrs. Dyke expressed no opposition to the man in question. She merely felt Police Commissioner Roger Mathews would be the more logical man to head an investigation on traffic.

Mayor Chapman explained his policy was to appoint to committees those who "had time."

Guest House Law Should Go On Ballot

Another storm has been started by Carmel's controversial "three paying guests law." Since the city fathers decided to enforce the ordinance about a year ago, it has provided fuel for countless arguments.

In the press, on the streets, in the council chambers, at the Town Meeting and in the homes of various guest house owners over the past year, the ordinance restricting lodging houses to three paying guests, in the residential area, has proved embarrassing to the entire village of Carmel. The police do not particularly like enforcing it, operators of large guest homes feel that they are being discriminated against and many persons in Carmel who are not directly affected by the ordinance are beginning to express their sympathy for the the guest house owners.

Why don't we test the ordinance?

During the turbulent afternoon of the last Planning Commission meeting, Commissioner Bert Heron voiced an idea that has been in the minds of many people.

"If, as some people seem to think, the present laws of Carmel no longer reflect the wishes of the public, then the matter should be placed on the Spring ballot," Mr. Heron said.

Well, why not?

Let's place it on the ballot and find out how Carmel residents feel about the guest houses restriction. Let those who are interested in seeing the law struck from the books offer an alternate ordinance, one which would assure that Carmel does not become another "Santa Cruz," but which provides a fair means of income for those guest houses that are already in existence.

A few people around town have suggested that there are only about a dozen guest houses large enough to accomodate more than three or four guests. To stop the argument, Carmel could probably afford to allow these houses to operate at full capacity, while definitely checking the growth of any more such large lodging houses.

A petition signed by 10 percent of Carmel's registered voters will place the ordinance on the ballot. There is even a way to seek a modification of the guest house law. And there is time to do it.

This publication has come out editorially time and time again as being opposed to the law as it now stands.

However, if Carmel voters uphold the law in a municipal election, not another word will ever be printed against it. Let's put it on the ballot and settle the matter for once and all.

W. H. M.

SWEET CHARIOT!

Letter:

Editor, The Spectator
Carmel, California

Dear Sir:

How strange but interesting to see and hear the Carmel taxpayers going through another epidemic of "gripes." It's history repeating itself as this has always happened before a bond election. We argue and gripe before election day, but when it's all over and we see the completed physical beauty of buildings, pool, etc., we burst with pride and bring it to the attention of all newcomers and friends who seek the finest culturally, educationally and aesthetically.

The proposed tax bracket for Carmel would not frighten anyone or hurt them. We are a substantial community and, comparing it with other communities of the same size, our tax rate is lower and, furthermore, would you change places with anyone? The answer is no.

The high school auditorium seems to be the big argument among those against the bond issue. But, if the plans and program are studied carefully, it will be seen that the reasons are definitely sound and we should not hesitate but be 100 percent for such program planning.

This same situation, only worse, was enacted before we found the site for our present high school, and I doubt if we ever went through a hotter or more bitter fight, but we all know the answer, and it's tops, and a credit to all who view and use its beautiful facilities. Where can you live and own property with all the educational advantages Carmel and its educational program have to offer with so low a tax rate?

This plea is not for us alone but for posterity. I can't help but reminisce and think what progress has been made and what a contrast all this is to the little one-room school of the present Sunset School site I knew in 1911.

The growing pains and gripes were no different then from now.

Let's always be proud.

Sincerely,

Gladys R. Johnston

No Miner Revolt Against Lewis Seen by Coal Men

Operators Know John L. Still Holds Firm Control

WASHINGTON—Veteran coal men laugh at the stories of a "rebellion" of the miners against John L. Lewis.

The stories circulated when some 90,000 miners in five states refused to heed Lewis' "suggestion" that they return to work and continued their strike for three weeks.

Insiders figure it was all carefully planned. They note that the so-called "rebellion" was confined to steel company pits and the biggest northern commercial producers where Lewis wanted to exert the greatest pressure in his contract battle.

John L Lewis

Elsewhere in the coal fields approximately 300,000 miners dutifully worked a three-day week and took no notice of the "no contract, no work" movement of the rebelling 90,000.

Mine owners know that John L.'s firm control of the Miners' Union has not weakened. When a miner joins the UMW, he takes an oath of allegiance to the organization and pledges to keep it "as long as life remains, or until I am absolved by the UMW." Violation of union orders could bring swift expulsion from the UMW and loss of employment.

● NEW PLANE—NEW ENGINE—Still unpublicized but due for a brief unveiling soon is a new North American jet fighter which experts say will "take up where the others leave off."

It's the F-93, advanced version of the F-86 Sabre which holds the official world's speed record at 670 miles an hour.

The new warplane, successfully tested, is built around the Pratt and Whitney T-48 jet engine. The T-48, an advanced version of the British Tay, is probably the most powerful jet engine in existence. It develops nearly 8,000 pounds of thrust (about equal to the same number of horsepower) with the use of an after-burner to utilize gases whose thrust otherwise is wasted.

● TAP-HAPPY—The current gag among government officials in Washington is to open a telephone conversation with a flip reference to the possibility that wire tappers are listening in.

However, behind the joking there is a real concern in some circles over the fact that at least a few Washington phones are being tapped by the FBI and probably by other agencies and individuals.

A few congressmen have said openly they suspect their phones are being tapped. Other officials are silent on the subject, but the anxiety is there.

"Maybe," observed one Washingtonian, "it will revive the lost art of face-to-face conversation."

New Korean Bill Expected To Pass

● FIRST SLAP—Some Democrats admit privately that the surprise House defeat of the Korean aid bill was a good thing for the Truman administration. They explain that it has jolted the State department out of complacency.

From now on, it is said, the administration will not coast along in the belief that Congress will give it whatever it asks in foreign aid. A real case will be presented for continuance of the Marshall Plan and other vital phases of the cold war against Communism.

The House action in defeating the Korean bill by one vote is considered a stinging rebuke to the administration for refusing military aid to non-Red Chinese on the island retreat of Formosa. Economy was another reason. Some congressmen who are going to vote to cut domestic programs said they wanted to lay groundwork for this action.

A second Korean bill is expected to pass. But the record of resistance has been made.

Discerning Discs

By Henry Dunskin

Great Britain continues to show a remarkable faith in its contemporary composers. Live performances are demanded, and when a work is found to have merit, enterprisers and government alike assume sponsorship for its recording. At hand are three notable works that are not too likely to get an American pressing, yet it is felt that followers of modern music are entitled to know of their existence.

VAUGHAN WILLIAMS

At the top of the list is that grand old man of England, Ralph Vaughan Williams. His "Lark Ascending" (Eng. Col.) is scored for violin and orchestra. Actually, the "Lark" is a romance in one movement that follows a sustained line of sheer melodic beauty. It is the type of thing that causes one to spin gossamer fantasies of lofty height... an almost forgotten pleasure in these days of hurry-hurry. David Wise gives the violin role a superb reading and receives sympathetic support from the Liverpool Philharmonic Orchestra, led by Sir Malcom Sargent.

ARTHUR BLISS

A younger composer is represented in two works of contrasting efforts. While Bliss shows neither the profound nor contemplative philosophy of Vaughan Williams, he is nonetheless a master in his field. The Suite from his ballet, "The Miracle in the Gorbals," reveals quite a dexterity in handling various emotions. It opens with a revealing street scene and as the plot unveils, we are given a suicide, young lovers, deliverance, and a murder! An underlying waltz, tricky rhythms, and a rich tonal canvas give a somewhat interesting slant to the gruesomeness otherwise depicted. The choreography belongs to the Sadler Wells group, which is of interest to balletomanes. Constant Lambert turns in his usual fine conducting, this time with the Royal Opera House Orchestra of Covent Garden, and the recording is English Columbia.

In quite another vein is this composer's "String Quartet in B Flat" (Eng. Decca) Strict adherence is paid to the classical form in its thematic construction; however, it falls well into the modern school of dissonance treatment. The composition rambles nowhere, interest is not permitted to lag, and melodies abound. No open ear will be discomforted or shocked. The performing ensemble is the impeccable Griller Quartet, scheduled for local appearance this Spring under sponsorship of the Carmel Music Society.

NAVY GENERAL LINE SCHOOL

CLASSES START FEBRUARY 20th

Naval officers and their families have been arriving from duty all over the world at the Monterey Navy General Line School in the past few weeks. They will take up their classes in the middle of February. For their information and for the edification of the public, the SPECTATOR prints the following article on the history, growth and future of the school.

When the U.S. Navy secured its present-day beachhead in Monterey in 1948, it acquired a 606-acre tract of land and 20 buildings which are being used to realize the educational proposals of the Holloway Plan.

The Navy promised, at the conclusion of World War II, when it invited reserve officers to transfer to the regular Navy, to give them an educational background equivalent to that which a regular Navy man receives at Annapolis. For the former reserves, and for former temporary officers too, this meant that a general Naval education would supplement their wartime specialist know-how. It meant that they would be assured equal opportunity of promotion and assignment along with their associates from the Naval Academy. It also meant, by virtue of the maximum professional educational background given under the General Line School curriculum, an opportunity for wider responsibility and authority.

It is these principles which underlie the present training methods and curriculum of the Monterey establishment, as well as at the prior-established General Line School at Newport, Rhode Island. The first class of 366 officer students was graduated at Monterey in December, 1948, equipped with a resulting professional background of ten intensive months of training. This training enabled them to be assigned to any duty in the fleet or shore establishment compatible with their rank.

This year 500 former reserve and temporary officers are enrolled at the General Line School. A staff of almost 100 is teaching them such subjects as strategy and tactics, communications, anti-submarine warfare and combat operations center, logistics, military and international law, administration and leadership, foundations of national power, ordnance and gunnery, seamanship and navigation, meteorology, engineering, electrical engineering, and damage control.

The General Line School schedule is a compact one - classes comprise 1010 hours per year, with a minimum of three hours outside study per night considered a requisite to make the necessary grades plus one additional week aboard a ship assigned to the school.

This year's class has a preponderance of Naval aviators - a total of 364. In addition to their academic pursuits, they must keep up their flight proficiency by accomplishing approximately 10 hours flying time per month at the nearby Naval Auxiliary Air Station.

In addition to the General Line School's present primary function of broadening the background of wartime reserve specialists and temporary officers, the school is the site of one postgraduate school at present. This is the first of a planned relocation of all postgraduate activities to the Monterey locale.

The postgraduate Aerological Engineering Department, which was transferred to Monterey in July, 1948, from Annapolis, Md., trains officers in the functions of collecting and analyzing weather information for strategic and tactical purposes within the Naval organization. Three courses, one year in applied aerology, two years in special aerology, and two years in aerological engineering, are presently training a total of 43 officers in understanding and predicting the vagaries of the weather. Included in the group is one WAVE Lieutenant (junior grade), the lone feminine officer student at the Naval School

The postgraduate School of Naval Administration, which was transferred to Monterey from Stanford University in September, 1948, trained a small, specially selected group of Naval officers in island government administration. After an intensive three-month course in all phases of island government, politics, sociology and economics, they were assigned to the islands which comprise the Trust Territory of the Pacific. These are the former Japanese mandated islands which have now been assigned to United States' trusteeship by the United Nations.

The last class in Naval Administration was graduated on Aug. 26, 1949. The organization of further classes has been held in abeyance pending determination of future needs for administrators.

Future plans for the Naval School are contingent upon Congressional appropriations. According to the Holloway Plan, they encompass the eventual training, by 1954, of 2,600 officers per year at Monterey. By this time the present General Line School mission will have been completed. Transferred reserve and temporary officers will have gone through either the Monterey or Newport schools.

Yearly estimates for the number of students in these future-planned courses include: 375, applied technical courses; 800, design courses; 175, intelligence and foreign languages; and 250, Army, Coast Guard and foreign students. In addition to these specialized courses, it is anticipated that there will be 1,000 students each year enrolled in a general line refresher course, which will be automatically required of every officer six years after he has been commissioned, regardless of the source of his commission. This new general line course will be on a higher, more technical level than the present course. It is contemplated that a staff of 400 and proportionate increases in enlisted and civilian personnel will be required at this time.

Under the Holloway Plan, it is estimated that an eventual Congressional appropriation of $34,000,000 will be required for necessary modification of existing facilities and construction of additional buildings, to meet the ultimate requirements of the contemplated expansion.

Laboratories for ordnance and gunnery, aerodynamics and aircraft testing, as well as steam propulsion and internal combustion laboratories, additional classrooms, a gymnasium enlisted men's barracks and recreation facilities, and conversion of the power plant and galley are among the essentials in this long-range program.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the General Joseph W. LETTER FROM LEMRAC

- By Ernest Hemandhaw, RIP roving correspondent

LEMRAC-BY-THE-SEA, Calif., - (RIP) - I stumbled onto this little hamlet not more than four days ago and was enchanted. The place gets you after a while; yet, it is little known in other parts of the country. The City Fathers tell me there hasn't been a story published about LEMRAC in the past 48 hours. You see, the town is off the beaten path and doesn't welcome visitors.

Approaching the village from the east, I saw a city limits sign that told me only 2500 persons live here. While sipping coffee the first morning in a place known as the Hamlet Hotcorner, I counted that many persons between 9 and 10 a.m., but an elderly man in a beret informed me that I was in error. The Hamlet Hotcorner is walled in plate glass and I was seeing reflections, the man said.

Spending my first night in a hotel, I started asking around to see if there were any method for me, as a writer, to get a little local color. What better way than for me to go right out and live with the natives? Are there any rooming houses in LEMRAC?, I asked the hotel desk clerk. The man shot a quick look over his shoulder and said, "Frankly, friend, the town is loaded with rooming houses. Since you checked out already, anyway, I'll tell you where to find a few."

I went to 53 places before someone told me what I was really seeking were guest houses, not rooming houses, so I looked up a guest house where they said I could spend the night. I was finding adventure in LEMRAC. I was arrested and thrown into the local Bastille.

The Police Department told me that I was what is known as a "surplus guest." It seems that any hostelry that accomodates less than 100 guests is only permitted to take in three. Things had been strictly on the up and up in the place I had spent the night, but the young couple who preceded me into the house had not played fair with their host. The woman had a baby during the night --- and then there were four.

Four may be fine for bridge, but guests in LEMRAC lodging houses are learning a pretty sharp game called "three-handed canasta." As a matter of fact, one guest house owner confided to me that the game was invented in his house. (The same man said he was thinking of putting a couple of roulette tables in his basement. "We must eat," he said, shrugging.)

Feeling sorry for the man and woman who operated the guest house I stayed in, I asked them if they had any way to seek relief.

The man said: "Look, my friend. The WPA went out long ago."

"No, no, you misunderstood me," I hastened to reply. "I meant, is there any municipal body which might hear your case with a view to giving you relief?"

The man spat on his own Persian rug. "I reckon you mean the LEMRAC Board of Plotters. You ain't been around here very long, have you, friend?"

I allowed that I hadn't.

"Well, sir, the Board of Plotters ... (I dodged nimbly aside as he cut loose again) ... "has made theirselves mighty unpopular with us guest house owners. You ain't got a chance with the plotters (patoo) without you love trees, chuckholes and the status quo. They're plottin' for the future, tryin' to keep it just like the past..."

"Not very progressive, eh?" I inquired.

"Mister, you better get out of here before I ruin this rug," the man said, squirming uncomfortably.

I suited my action to his words. There's a story here somewhere, I said to myself as I returned to the hotel. Maybe I ought to go to the next meeting of the LEMRAC Board of Plotters, I mumbled.

(Next week, see part two in this exciting, on the spot, first hand, unexpurgated, underwritten, chronicling of day-to-day life in the village of LEMRAC, U. S. A. The opinions of the writer are not necessarily those of RIP, although we'll string along with him for a while. - The editor.)

We are happy to announce that we have arranged with the Union Castle Line for a Spring-Summer Tour, leaving New York in the Mauretania on April 28, connecting in England with the Dunnottar Castle on May 11 for a cruise around Africa, proceeding outwards by way of the Mediterranean and East Coast of Africa and homewards via the West Coast of Africa. The return to the United States will be made from Southampton in the Queen Mary on July 22.

Here is the itinerary:
April 28 - Lv. New York aboard S.S. MAURETANIA; May 5 - Arr. Southampton. In England: May 11 - Lv. London aboard M.V. DUNNOTTAR CASTLE; May 16/17 - Marseilles; May 18/19 - Genoa; May 23/24 - Port Said, Suez; May 26/27 - Port Sudan; May 29 - Aden; June 3/8 - Mombasa; June 8/9 - Tanga; June 9/14 - Dar-es-Salaam; June 14/15 - Zanzibar; June 18/22 - Beira; June 24 - Lourenco Marques; June 25/27 - Durban; June 28 - East London; June 29 - Port Elizabeth; June 30-July 1 - Capetown; July 6 - St. Helena; July 8 - Ascension; July 14 - Las Palmas; July 19 - Arr. London; July 22 - Lv. Southampton aboard S.S. QUEEN MARY; July 27 - Arr. New York.

From our recent experience, we expect that this trip will meet with a warm reception on the part of the traveling public. This 91-day de luxe tour, using ships of the highest calibre and visiting 20 ports, can be made for as little as $17 a day.

RATES: $1,530 - covers complete steamship transportation, minimum First Class transatlantic and outside space in First Class in the DUNNOTTAR CASTLE.

$1,772 - gives you a room & bath throughout, First Class.

We hold an allotment of space in the Dunnottar Castle and can guarantee First Class accommodation transatlantic in both directions.

As our allotment of space is limited, we urge that you make your applications for accommodation early to the Morse-Gleason Travel Agency, San Carlos between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel; phone 1676-R. ADV.

Modern Kitchens Vs Pacific Grove

Residents of Pacific Grove who have modernized kitchens have been complaining about the garbage pickup. They have complained often enough that Mayor William McC. Chapman last week explained their problem to the City Council.

It seems that Pacific Grove residents - whether or not they own kitchen waste "disposers" - are being charged for the garbage pickup, which is a compulsory service to the community. People with garbage "disposers" feel it is unfair.

"We don't have any garbage, so why do we have to pay for the service?" they ask.

The City Council thought it over for a minute, considered the fact that tin cans, bottles and other such refuse cannot go through the "disposers," decided to charge the regular rate for everyone.

AUDUBON MEMBERS TO SEE SCREEN TOUR SATURDAY

The next Screen Tour of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society will be held at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Sunset School auditorium, Carmel. The society recently announced that profits from the Screen Tours will go toward purchase of the Carmel River beach.

The Saturday lecture will be conducted by Walter Breckenridge, who will show a motion picture of "Paul Bunyan Country" - the State of Minnesota.

ATTENTION !!!

This may soothe a few people who have income tax nerves. D. S. Berry, state income tax examiner, will be at the Carmel office of the Monterey County Trust & Savings Bank Wednesday, Feb. 15, to help prepare returns. The service is FREE OF CHARGE and will be available from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Letter:

Dear Editor:

I note with pleasure that the topic under public discussion at the Feb. 16 meeting of the Carmel Town Hall, at Sunset Auditorium, will be the proposed million dollar school bond issue. It is a warm subject.

The fine old American institution of the Town Meeting is the ideal medium for the use of government officials in putting their case before the voters. It also affords the best possible opportunity for the citizen taxpayers and voters to ask questions and get answers before casting their ballots for or against.

I understand also that the March Town Hall Meeting will be held after the last filing date for candidates, and that all candidates will be asked to appear. Carmel voters will get to see and ask questions of their prospective town officers before voting for them, and can make a more intelligent choice. This is a definite step toward having the best available timber on Council and Boards.

Between now and Feb. 16, then, to get the most representative citizen attendance, it will be a wise investment of effort for all Carmelites who know of the forthcoming meeting to see that their friends and neighbors know, too.

Sincerely,
Noyes McKay.

Adams and E. R. Youret, assisted by Arch Gibson.

Jessie Martin will give a talk on air mail stamps at the next meeting, Feb. 20, Room 11, Sunset School. The stamp club is one of the most interesting clubs on the peninsula, and new members are invited.

SPECTATOR LAUNCHES NEW PUBLICATION

Tomorrow a new publication will make its debut on the peninsula. It will be called THE ARMED FORCES EDITION of THE SPECTATOR. It is designed for the reading pleasure of, and as a source of information for, military personnel both active and retired or reserved, living on or near the Monterey Peninsula. THE ARMED FORCES EDITION will be published in Monterey every other Friday and will be distributed free.

Editor of this new publication is Mary Cameron Doran, wife of Lieutenant H. M. Doran, who is navigation instructor at the Navy General Line School in Monterey. Mrs. Doran, although she has been a Navy wife seven years, intends to do a completely impartial job of reporting the news for all the services.

Born 28 years ago in Great Falls, Montana, Mrs. Doran attended schools there and later enrolled at University of Montana, where she majored in education. Prior to her marriage, she was a purchasing agent for the Naval Supply Depot in Oakland. Lieutenant and Mrs. Doran have been stationed in Panama two years, Key West, New England, and in various West Coast ports. They came to Carmel to live last July when Lieutenant Doran was transfered here from New London, Conn., where he had been division engineer at the Submarine Base. They will be stationed on the peninsula two more years.

"ABSENTEE BALLOTS" AVAILABLE FOR SCHOOL BOND VOTE

Carmel voters who wish to vote in the school bond election Feb. 28, but who will not be present at the time, are being asked by the Board of Trustees, Carmel Unified School District, to submit letters requesting an "absentee ballot."

Letters should be sent to Stuart Mitchell, secretary of the board (care of Carmel High School), not later than Thursday, Feb. 23. The ballots will be mailed to the voters, who will mark them and return them to the board in a sealed envelope. These envelopes will be opened by the Board of Trustees and counted on the day that the board canvasses the election returns, Tuesday, March 7.

KING RETURNS FROM GROCERS' MEETING IN EAST

John W. King, vice-president of Lucky Boy Markets, Inc. and a resident of Carmel, returned Monday from a ten-day trip to Washington. He is California director of the National Retail Grocers Association and while in the East attended the three day meeting of the National Board of Directors of the association. Mr. King, who is also chairman of the membership committee and the committee to set up a standard organization plan, reports that Vice-President Albin Barkley talked to the gathering. Parts of his talk were quite humorous, and, among other things, he explained how he was trying to prove that two can live as cheaply as one. Also addressing the group was a representative of the Attorney Generals office, who expressed the government's opinion that a conviction would be secured in the case against the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company.
